SUBJECT:

Treasurer's Report for January 2019

BACKGROUND:

Attached is the Portfolio recap for January 2019. Some of the highlights are:

1. The overall portfolio average interest rate was 2.23 percent in January 2019, an increase of 0.07 percent from December 2018.
2. The market value of the portfolio, including District holdings and debt proceeds, for January 2019 was $521.9 million versus a book value of $523.9 million. December 2018 market value was at $526.9 million versus a book value of $528.9 million.

As shown in the comparison below, the interest rates for three-year treasury bills ended the month of January 2019 at 2.66 percent, or three basis points higher than the rate in December 2018. The yield curve continued to flatten, meaning that the yield on short term maturities is nearly the same as those of medium-term maturities. This is due to the market's concern for continued interest rate increases by the Fed in 2019. In 2018, the Fed increased rates four times and are likely to increase rates two more times in 2019. The District's investment strategy remained conservative for January 2019, with 41 percent of the Portfolio invested in securities, which mature within 60 days to ensure liquidity and protect principal. The District's investment strategy during Fiscal Year 2018-19 emphasizes greater diversification and relatively short duration risk with purchases of Federal Agencies (target of 32 percent of portfolio), highly rated corporate notes (target of 13 percent of portfolio) and municipal bonds (target of 17 percent of portfolio). Investment targets are one to two-year maturities to reduce the impact of interest rate escalation while providing reasonable returns to meet the District's objectives.
